Reframing the Natural History Museum in the context of a planetary crisis

An Annual Reach of 21 Million

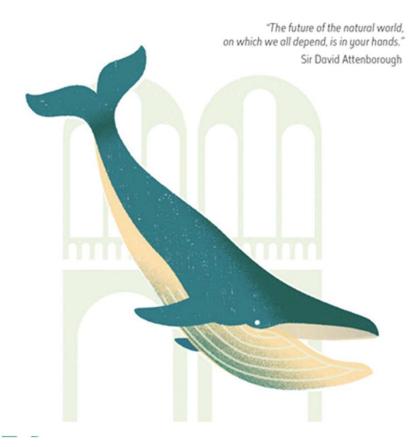

We face a planetary emergency

So where are we now

- Doom and gloom is paralyzing
- Facts don't change minds
- Climate scientists have been under attack
- Need to balance motivation and despair
- Told to be relevant
- Business and policy are increasingly active in this space
- Natural history museums are trusted and loved institutions

A New Strategic Plan to 2031

Our vision is a future where both people and planet thrive

Our mission is to create advocates for the planet

Advocate Engagement Framework

Empower

Enable people to make informed choices and take action to care for the planet

Inform

Share stories of the natural world that help people place themselves in the story of our planet

Inspire

Create relevant and memorable experiences that help people connect with nature

Visitor Charter

Provide a first-class experience for our global audience

People act on behalf of nature

People understand their role in nature and their impact on it

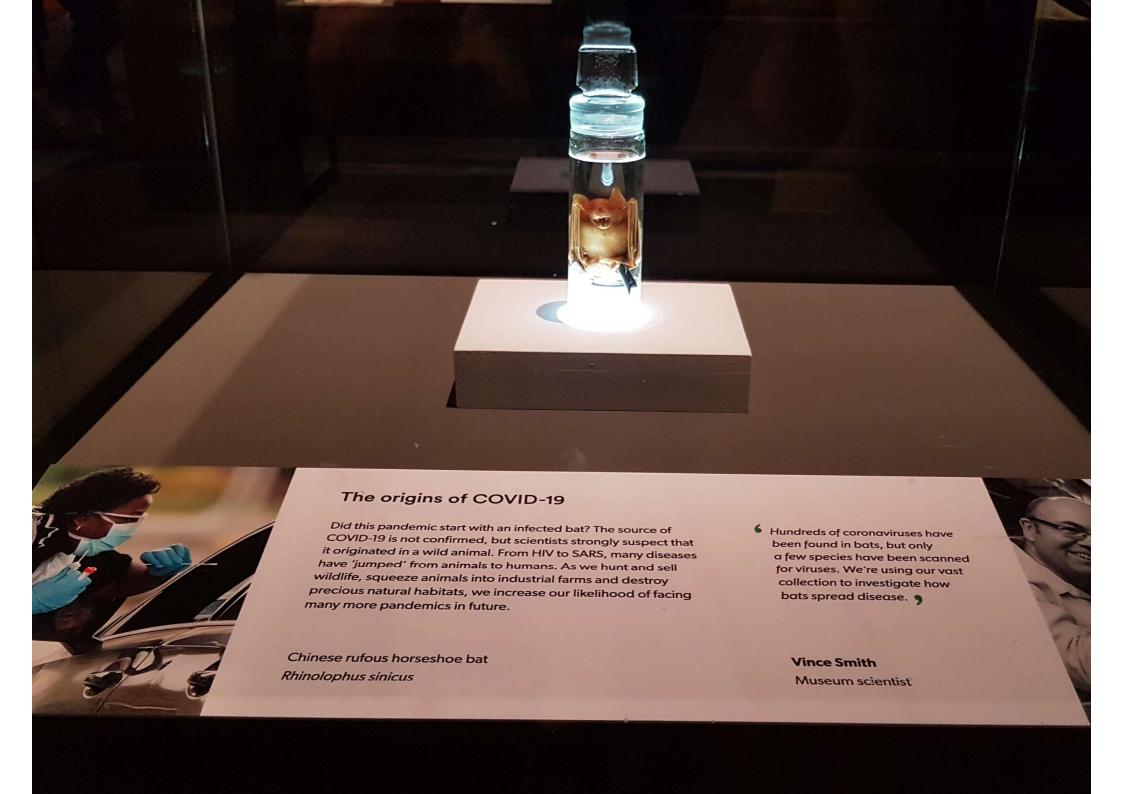

People feel connected to nature

Advocate for the planet

Our Broken Planet: How we got there and ways to fix it

A new touring approach; that uses IP rather than objects.

New programming approach Global issues, global partnerships with global voices

March 20-25

GENERATION

ACT FOR THE PLANET

